The river cruise could not have been better. The hospitality of the crew, the fabulous Tour Guide, the food and the entertainment contributed to our happiness.

There is a collection of quaint towns dotting the perimeter of the massive wishbone-shaped lake. The placid water is framed by the dramatically steep hills and grand mountains of the Italian Alps, some of which were still snow-capped in late spring. Terra cotta, butter, and blush-tinted villas contrasted against the deep emerald green of the water. This Boston Globe writer describes Lake Como.
